NEW PLOTS STUD MORTIMER'S TALE AIMED AT FORBES

But Lawyers for Defense
Smile as Day Ends.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
From the smirking lips of Elias H. Mortimer, twisting on the rack of his third day's cross-examination in the veterans' hospital trial, came new glimpses yesterday of the seamy side of Washington, where the brotherhood of fiends operates in every department and even at the door of the White House, and the thirty pieces of Judas silver is translated into millions of graft.

The curious mind of Mortimer, steeped in scandal and dirt, leaped from the box woven by the attorneys from his own confounding statements, and struck in new directions.

Another Plot that Failed.

He pitched out the shipping board in 1922, when Albert D. Leake, then as one covering point, John W. Thompson, co-defendant with Col. Charles R. Forbes in this trial; the late James W. Black, William McCauley, Washington agent for the Sutherland Construction company of St. Louis, and A. M. McDonald of the Seattle Shipbuilding company, were named in another plot that failed.

These men were interested, the witness said, in the Chesapeake Engineering and Shipbuilding company, which wanted to get hold of the wooden fleet of the government, which lay in the James river flats. They put in a bid and got it through the shipping board. Then they approached a friend of the late President, offering and offered him a million dollars, according to Mortimer, who would use his influence at the White House.

"But this young man was clean and straight and told the President he did not want it was the right kind of a deal," said Mortimer. "The President was going to sign the paper for the sale. This stopped it."

Judge George A. Carpenter had the first reference to this deal stricken from the record and asked that the name of the President's friend not be used.

Witness is Entangled.

It was about this time that Mortimer became entangled in his own stories as to an alleged bribe offered Forbes in the Tupper Lake contract. McCauley was mixed up in this also. The defense showed that the money which Mortimer was accused of in this case was paid two months before the tract was awarded, and that Forbes had nothing to do with letting the contract.

Mortimer said that he and his two former friends, McCauley and McDonald, were the ones who first thought of the hospital contract as graft, but he placed it on the shoulders of the government and Black for the actual bribing of Forbes. He named eight specific methods of bribery under the close questioning of Attorney Randolph Laughlin of St. Louis, who followed his advantages with bulldog tenacity.

Plenty of Easy Money.

In the spring of 1922, when the $17,000,000 Langley bill for the soldier hospitals was pending, Mortimer was living in privacy with his mistress, Mrs. Langley, in a rooming house in the Wabash Avenue apartments with the bride of two years. He had a $7,500 car and a liveried chauffeur. He was making plenty of easy money. He and his friends watched the progress of the bill like hawks. They began to plot long in advance.

Mortimer made it his special business to ingratiate himself with Forbes, the new director of the mammoth Veterans' board. He then arranged to become the agent for Thompson and Black.

Q.—Did you suggest that you could corrupt anybody?

A.—Not openly. Everybody in Washington knew how friendly I was with Forbes. Half the game in Washington then was friendship.

Q.—Were you selling your friendship or your ability to corrupt?

A.—If necessary, I would sell both.

Bryan Urges Presbyterians to Curb Homicides

BRYAN LEADING NEW CRUSADE AGAINST CRIME

Asks Presbyterians to Back Fight.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.

William Jennings Bryan's resolution, urging a church fight on suicide, homicide, and preventable accident; Dr. William Chalmers Covert's denunciation of paganism; education; and statistics showing that America last year spent $100,000,000 more on cosmetics than on religion.

These three points yesterday engaged the attention of the 1,000 delegates to the national Presbyterian conference, which tomorrow closes its four day session at Fourth Presbyterian church.

Wants Strong Fight on Crime.

Mr. Bryan, vice moderator, and informal focal point of the entire convention, wants official church recognition of the value of the human life as well as the value of the human soul. After referring to the disproportionately high number of suicides and other crimes of violence in the United States, and to the loss of life in traffic and industry, the Presbyterian vice moderator's resolution reads:

"Therefore, be it resolved, that we earnestly call public attention to this matter of indifference to the priceless value of human life, as shown by the number of homicides, suicides, and preventable accidents, and that all the ministers of our church to bring the subject strongly before the members of their respective congregations, and that we appeal to our co-religionists in other churches to take similar action to the end that proper steps may be taken to save the sacred gift from the Creator, which man can extinguish, but is powerless to restore."

And we hereby declare our readiness to cooperate with all groups of citizens organized for the remedying of this great evil." Action on this resolution, together with others taken before the conference, will be taken today.

—Alvin M. Parsons.

Educated, pagan, subtle, brilliant cynics, who praise Nietzsche and Freud, literary smart-alecks, were a few of the phrases which Dr. Covert, conference chairman, hurled at the pagan intelligentsia, which is unduly influencing the life of youth."

"Reading, writing, and 'arithmetick' are the three pillars upon which he stands as he said it. 'Do not make moralists.'

Part of the blame for the 'spiritual illiteracy' of the youth of today rests on the home, according to Dr. Covert. And he told of a mother who belonged to twenty-one clubs, and of the father of a child who had no time to play.

Dr. Covert's resolution, which included the nationalists, provided the latter will adhere to the government's foreign policy, especially the Dawes plan.

The formal resignation of the cabinet probably will take place in a few days. It sources close to the chancellor it is indicated that the upshot of the situation is likely to be the formation of a broad coalition to include the nationalists. The development is expected, partly because the nationalists desire to try their hand at governing and partly because their opponents want to maneuver them into an impossible position, expecting their efforts to collapse after the first of this year when the Senate declines to ratify the Kellogg-Bautista pact.

The republicans, therupon, will be able to say that the nationalists have failed to accomplish anything.

MARTIN RELATES TREK IN FOG AFTER CRASHING

Days Without Sleep and Only Little Food.

SECTION XIX.

"On the morning of May 2 the fog was still with us, but we decided to make our way out to the coast. Our hydrographic charts were of no value because they failed to show enough of the interior. We left behind our fur-lined flying suits because there were too cumbersome to walk in, and set out in our ordinary clothes, which included lightweight undershirts, underclothing, woolen breeches, flannel shirts, chambray vests, cotton overalls, heavy socks and shoes.

"In order to keep more nearly in a straight line one of us would break trail for a while while the other followed a little behind, just close enough to shoot game if the birds were inclined to sing. In this way we made our way over the mountain on which we had crashed, and then to the top of another peak. By that time the fog had lifted slightly. None too soon, either, because we were within a few paces of a 1,500 foot precipice.

Hits by Snow Blindness.

"Realizing the danger of trying to get over the mountain through the fog, we returned to the trail we had crossed. We thought it would surely bring us out somewhere along the shore. It sat toward Bering sea, and as long as we followed it we were no longer obliged to do any more climbing.

"Sergt. Harvey's eyes were now in a more serious condition and he could hardly see his hand in front of his face. He was wearing amber colored goggles. By using boric acid from the first aid kit the inflammation was reduced to nearly normal by the following morning. By then the fog had lifted and we ascended the mountain where we had crashed, to an altitude of about 3,000 feet. We had to make our way off to the southward and could see nothing but a sheer wall of rock and mountains, the tops of which were cut off by the clouds. But off to the southwest, through our field glasses, we saw a lake. Hoping that there might be a trapper somewhere on its shores, we made our way to it about 11 a. m. and at 4:30 that afternoon we were still three miles from it.

"Once we decided to camp for the night in an alder thicket. But during the remaining daylight hours we succeeded in killing two ptarmigans with our arms plain. The ptarmigan is about twice the size of a pheasant and is indigenous to Alaska. We cooked one in the meat can of my mess outfit and had it for supper. It was very appetizing, despite the fact that we had neither fat nor salt and used water to keep the meat from burning. The other bird we cooked for breakfast.

Lake, but No Trappers.

"Early next morning we started out on the lake again, reached it about noon, and paddled it in vain with our oars. We were sure to be far from the Bering sea side of the peninsula, both because there were sure to be fewer field glasses, but were unable to find a cabin or any other sign of human habitation. By now my eyes were giving me trouble and I was suffering from snow blindness, especially the fact that I was wearing amber goggles.

"As our best chance seemed to rest on finding a pass through the mountains to the southward, and as there was a lake and streams indicated on our maps which conformed closely to those which we had crossed, we figured that by following the stream, it would lead us to the lake, which we should come out at Ivanar bay. But it turned out that after a short distance this stream flowed in the opposite direction. Nevertheless hoping to find a pass through the mountains, we followed it. On account of my eyes I was not necessary for Harvey to lead the way, and we kept on notwithstanding the fact that we were weak and exhausted.

"At 3 o'clock that afternoon we came to a desirable spot to camp, which we decided to do because of my snow blindness. Here we found plenty of deadwood for fuel, and with great difficulty we made a bed and managed to get about four hours sleep, our first real rest since the crash. It never took long to prepare our meals because we usually had nothing but our emergency liquid food. According to the instructions we had been given, two tempeh rations, which were supposed to constitute a meal, but we increased this ration to three.

"After a tramp-five miles this morning we were able to send out word that they were safe after having been lost from April 20 to May 11.

1—Chicago, which Martin and Harvey left to fly to Dutch Harbor.

2—Martin and Harvey have run into a mountain in a dense fog and were obliged to walk to civilization. They crashed near an uninhabited lake, on the shores of which they expected to find a trapper, but found nothing but uninhabited waste land.

3—an arm of Port Moller bay, where they found a cabin with a cache of provisions and stayed through a storm.

4—After a tramp-five miles this morning they walked to Port Moller, where they were able to send out word that they were safe after having been lost from April 20 to May 11.

Inhabitants and because we had been informed that there was no driftwood on those shores. So at daybreak on the morning of the third, we retraced our steps to the airplane.

Hike Back to the Plane.

dened milk box. This was encouraging, but as Moller bay was still a mass of floating ice, we were afraid the canoe might still be unoccupied.

Start for Civilization.

"We made some hot cakes, but not having eaten any breakfast for several days, two of them was all we could stand. At any rate we now had both shelter and food. Despite the wood fire we spent a cold night and awoke the next morning to find it snowing stave. The storm lasted all day, all that night, and all through the next.

"The morning of the 9th we took a walk to try and locate our position, and finally decided that we were on Moller bay, an arm of Bering sea. Later Sergt. Harvey made a reconnaissance trip and verified this, while I prepared the wild duck which we had killed in the forest, all of them natives. The man in charge was a Mr. Jake Oviot, who farmed us across to the cannery. Here we were greeted by the superintendent and other employes, who seemed as overjoyed at seeing us as we were at meeting them.

"While we were devoting a superb meal, which we enjoyed more than words can express, messages were sent out from the wireless station to the chief of air service and our relatives.

"We were safe at last. And never will we forget the joy of that night's sleep in a warm, comfortable bed.

Lowell Smith Takes Command.

"On Monday May 13, a radiogram was received from the vice president of the Pacific-American Fisheries company, Bellingham, Wash., inviting Sergt. Harvey and myself to return to the U. S. Coast Guard, where we were to be in command of the crew of the U. S. Fish Commission. We accepted and sailed for Puget Sound via Uninak Pass. But before leaving Port Moller we were informed by wireless that every vessel along these shores had been searching for us

Signed Something, Don't Know What, He Says.

BY ORVILLE DWYER.

Mount Vernon, Ill., Dec. 10.—(Special)—Lawrence M. Hight, former Methodist pastor, on trial with Mrs. Sweetin for the murder of her husband, Wilford, today took the witness stand in an endeavor to prevent the confession that he furnished the poison to kill Sweetin from being admitted to evidence.

Three of his former brothers of the church to whom the confession was made preceded the former pastor in giving testimony as to how it was obtained to Judge J. C. Kern while the jury was taken from the courtroom.

The court will probably rule tomorrow upon the admission of the incriminating document as evidence before the jury.

The Rev. J. S. Cummings, who acted as "counsel for the defense" in the case; the Rev. Otto Horsely, evangelist from Marion, and the Rev. E. O. Allen were the pastors to testify.

"Boys, I'm Guilty."

Dr. Horsely was the first witness called. Prosecutor Thompson asked him just what Hight had said to him. "He said," testified Dr. Horsely, "Boys, I'm guilty. I was there at the church at 11 a.m. I met Mrs. Sweetin for the first time right in the church. She came down the aisle and a power came over me that I couldn't resist. I've been with the Lord all night. I know He has forgiven me. I hope the church can forgive me, too. I am ready now to meet the court."

The Rev. Mr. Allen then took the stand.

"Hight said he had poisoned his wife," the minister testified. "He said also that he had purchased the poison and given it to Mrs. Sweetin and that together they gave it to Sweetin."

Said Hight Was Guilty?

Dr. Horsely's fact was denied. Prosecutor Thompson asked him just what Hight also told you that his wife was cold and that Elsie Sweetin was warm and affectionate and that was why they got rid of Mrs. Hight and Sweetin?

Attorney Layman made objection to the question, but the court called for an answer, and the witness responded: "It is true."

Hight lost his assurance when he ascended the stand. He appeared like a man at bay and filled with fear. He was nervous and his eyes shifted incessantly. His high pitched voice had a whining note in it, like a schoolboy crying, except for the first few words.

On direct examination by Attorney Layman, he admitted he had signed the statement, but said he did it because his church counsel told him it would be best for him.

He then added lamely: "I signed it all right, but I didn't know a thing about it and don't know yet for that matter."

"There was a period there of about two weeks," he said, the whine coming back into his voice, "about two weeks I don't hardly remember anything about."

Earlier in the day Dr. William D. McNall, coroner's chemist from Chicago, told of finding arsenic in the vital organs of Sweetin.

Hight Bought Arsenic.

W. C. Messinger, druggist's clerk from Bensenville, told that Hight purchased arsenic six days before Sweetin died.

"He wanted arsenic," the clerk said. "I asked him what for. He said for rat poison. I gave him a regular tube of rat poison. But he insisted on

HOSPITAL PLANS
AT GREAT LAKES
NOW UNDER WAY

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10.—(Special)—An appropriation of about $600,000 for the new hospital for world war veterans at the Great Lakes training station near Chicago is carried in the deficiency bill recently signed by the President, and plans for the new hospital, which will accommodate 275 patients, now are being prepared at the United States veterans' bureau.

Gen. Frank T. Hines, director of the veterans' bureau, said tonight that the plan will be completed within a month and bids will be called for and construction begun at the earliest possible moment.

The new building, designed for mentally afflicted veterans, will be on the Dewey tract, formerly a part of the naval training station grounds, which has been turned over by the navy department to the veterans' bureau for the use of the veterans.

Failure of the bill to pass, owing to a filibuster in the senate in the closing days of the session last June, delayed the execution of the project, which now will be carried through without further delay.

COURT UPHOLDS CONVICTION OF
C. E. RUTHENBERG

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 10.—(By Associated Press)—C. E. Ruthenberg, secretary of the Workers' party and prominent member of the Communist Party of America, was held guilty of violation of the Michigan syndicalism law by the State Supreme court today.

He was originally convicted in Berrien county yesterday following his arraignment on the rule of the federal and local officers on the second convention of the communists at Bridgeman, Berrien county, in August, 1922.

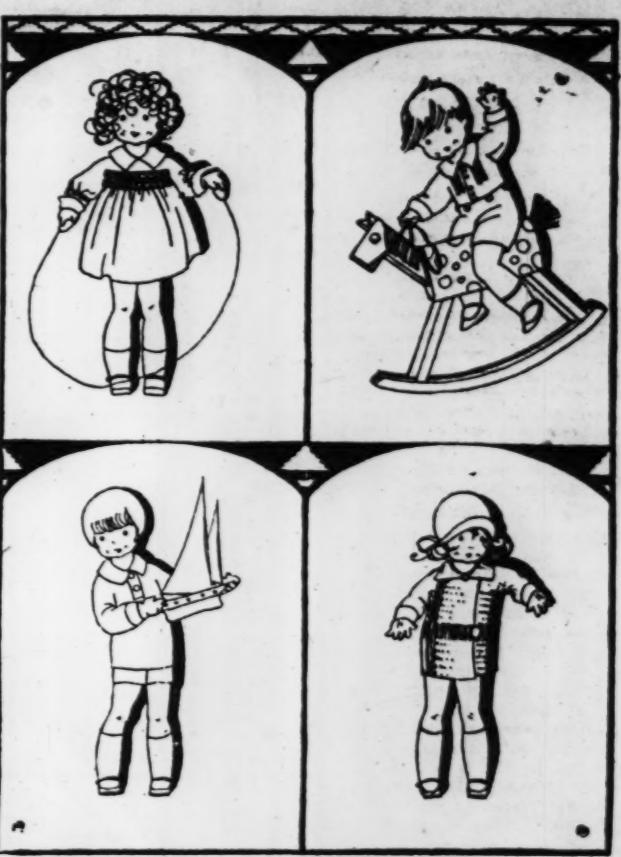

W. Z. Foster, who was the presidential candidate of the Workers' party in the last election, and Benjamin Gitlow, his running mate, were others arrested in the raid on the Berrien county convention.

He probably will be retried, and Gitlow, Ross, Pastor Stokes, and many other communists who were indicted but never tried may be brought into court as a result of today's decision.

BRONSON DECOU will give an illustrated lecture tomorrow before the Geographic Society of Chicago in the Fullerton Memorial hall of the Art institute.

TYPHOID CASES SHOW INCREASE; WARNING GIVEN

Bundesen Puts Blame on Raw Oysters.

Appearance of an unusually large number of typhoid fever cases in Chicago as well as in several large eastern cities led Health Commissioner Herman Bundesen yesterday to urge care in the use of raw oysters. Twenty-five of the thirty-one cases reported to the health department since Dec. 1, none of them in wealthy families, he blames on infected bivalves. There have been five deaths.

Telephone communication with health officers in New York, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Detroit, and Cincinnati disclosed to Dr. Bundesen that similar cases in varying degrees of intensity, and all attributed to infected oysters, exist in each of the cities. In New York 148 cases of the fever, five times the normal number, and a dozen deaths were reported yesterday.

Three Cases in Evanston.

Evanston, where the disease has been almost unknown, reported three cases last night. One of those stricken in the north shore suburb, it is said, is Edward Hines, millionaire lumberman and philanthropist, who has been confined to a hospital for nearly four weeks. Mr. Hines, although out of danger, must remain in the hospital for another fortnight at least, according to information received yesterday.

"In view of the situation, here and elsewhere, I urge the citizens of Chicago not to eat, for the present at least, raw oysters," declared Dr. Bundesen in a bulletin issued last night and broadcast from radio stations WGN, KYW, and WMAQ. The warning was probably the first of its kind that radio has ever used in Chicago to advise citizens of a health emergency.

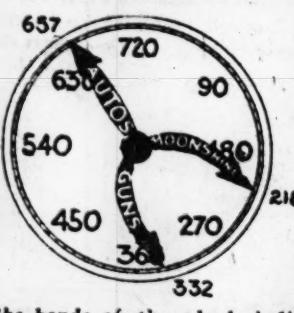

Among the locally prominent persons who are suffering with typhoid fever is Dr. Hugh N. Mackenzie, president of the Chicago Medical society, said to be in a serious condition at the Illinois Central hospital.

Thomas Thorkildsen, millionaire manufacturer, is in a similar plight at St. Luke's hospital, it was learned last night.

COUNTY'S SPEED TOLL MOUNTS TO 657 AS 5 MEN DIE

Five new names were added yesterday to Cook county's roster of automobile death victims. The toll since Jan. 1 now totals 657. Four of the victims were pedestrians and one was riding a bicycle when killed.

These are the dead: John Gilbert, 53 years old, Washington boulevard; 52 years old, 4807 South Winchester avenue; Anthony Trocha, 45 years old, 1512 Washington street; Evanston; Frank Dzinsenki, 50 years old, 2721 Bonfield street, and Frank Kmych, 45 years old, 4723 12th place, Cicero.

Injured Saturday by an automobile driven by Jerome Kolar, 419 Monroe avenue, River Forest. Gilbert died at the West Suburban hospital. Kolar, according to the police, fled from the scene of the accident, at Washington boulevard and Central avenue, and was arrested after a chase. He was held when the victim's son said Kolar had been drinking.

A Premier taxi driver by Joseph Alt, 1547 Sedgwick, was struck by a street car at Clark and Alinsle streets Tuesday night. The victim died early yesterday. Alt was held.

Another motor fatality was charged against Evanston with the death in St. Francis hospital of Anthony Trocha, 45 years old, 1512 Washington street.

Evanston. He was struck while riding his bicycle at Washington street and Ridge avenue by an automobile driven by Julius L. Scheffer of Highland Park. He was not held.

Dzinsenki, a laborer, died at the county hospital of injuries received Nov. 27, when, while cleaning a sewer in front of 2854 Archer avenue, he was struck by an automobile.

Kmych was struck while crossing

48th avenue and 13th street, in Cicero, by an automobile driven by Thomas Kastner, 5931 West Huron street.

Franklin K. Clegg, manager of the local branch of the Red Star Yeast and Products company, was sentenced to five days' imprisonment in the bridewell yesterday by Judge Philip J. Finnegan, who found him guilty of driving while intoxicated.

Officials are investigating the death following an auto crash of Vincent Philip, 1515 West 51st street.

OFFICIALS DROP INQUIRY INTO DEATH OF INCE

"San Diego, Cal., Dec. 10.—There will be no official investigation into the death of Thomas H. Ince, motion picture producer, at least as far as San Diego county officials are concerned, according to District Attorney Chester C. Kempler."

"I am satisfied that the death of Thomas H. Ince was caused by heart failure as the result of an attack of acute indigestion," Kempler said.

Kempler's statement followed interviews held by Dr. Thomas G. Garber, who attended Ince and stated that Ince told him that he had drunk considerable liquor aboard the yacht on which he became ill.

Aboard the yacht on which he became ill were William Randolph Hearst, Elinor Glyn, novelist, and Marian Davies, and Seena Owen, motion picture actress.

LEGION OF HONOR'S MUSEUM IS CREDITED TO W. N. CROMWELL

William Nelson Cromwell is being acclaimed in France as the man who made possible the Museum of the Legion of Honor, which shortly is to open. He is a New York lawyer specializing in international law and has a home in Paris.

Mr. Cromwell was one of the original backers of the museum plan, launched by Gen. Dubail in 1921, when the Legion of Honor was opened. He not only collaborated with Gen. Dubail but he placed at his disposal most of the money required for the construction, the interior decoration, and the collection of the institution.

Mr. Cromwell also donated to the French republic for display in the museum a splendid collection of paintings by Burnand, portraying the typical soldiers of the allies in the great war.

HABEAS CORPUS.

The fact that one judge can sharply rebuke another for obstructing the police in their handling of criminals is only one phase of a situation that seems to become worse day by day. Crime, organized and unorganized, has brought what is in truth a public emergency. It is frequent, unabashed, ruthless, even atrocious. Yet in the face of this emergency we have recrimination and cross-purposes instead of cooperation among the agencies of law enforcement.

The habeas corpus controversy is a most unpleasant development. We feel that Judge David is conscientious in his insistence upon the strict interpretation of the law and upon the importance of protecting the constitutional rights of the individual. A judge is sworn to obey as well as apply the laws, and the fact that a prisoner may be a highly undesirable citizen cannot justify denying him the rights guaranteed under the law and the constitution to all.

On the other hand, a court may and should have regard to the clear intention of the law and apply it consistently, and not inconsistently, with that intention. The writ of habeas corpus was never intended to be a shield to the guilty or an instrument for the defeat of justice. It was intended as a resort of the individual against unjust and unlawful oppression by government, whether that government were a king like John of Magna Charta, or a parliament, or a Municipal Judge in Chicago of today. But it was not intended, and cannot rightly be used, as a means of persistently extracting prisoners from reasonable detention and interrogation by the police. On the contrary, we believe that if the phrasology of the statute be interpreted with regard to the clear and undeniable purpose of habeas corpus, the court will find room for a proper discretion for withholding the writ a reasonable time in cases of doubt.

That is to say, while the first sentence of paragraph 5 of the act provides that the judge to whom the application is made shall "forthwith" award the writ if on the face of the petition it does not appear that the party cannot be discharged or admitted to bail, we call attention to the language of the remainder of the paragraph. This is cited as giving reason why a judge dare not refuse to issue the writ upon application, but, on the contrary, we think it indicates that the judge is intended to exercise a reasonable discretion and cannot be penalized for so doing if he does not act corruptly.

The language is as follows: "Any judge empowered to issue writs of habeas corpus who shall CORRUPTLY refuse to issue any such writ, when legally applied for in a case where it may lawfully issue, or who shall FOR THE PURPOSE OF OPPRESSION UNREASONABLY delay the issuing of such writ, shall, for every such offense, forfeit to the prisoner or party aggrieved a sum not exceeding $1,000."

We beg leave to submit to Judge David that by the foregoing language the legislature plainly announces that a judge may refuse or delay granting a writ, if he does not do so corruptly or for purpose of oppression, or for an unreasonable time.

That is the unavoidable implication of the language of this sentence which completes the paragraph and is obviously intended to be interpreted with the mandatory sentence which precedes it.

This, we are confident, is law. It is common sense. The habeas corpus writ should be granted with discretion, with regard for the rights of a community to protect itself from lawless violence as well as with regard for the protection of the individual in the lawful enjoyment of his liberty. That discretion, we are confident, is plainly vested in the judge and is expected to be used by the judge according to the situation before him. He is not required to act hastily or automatically. The legislature evidently recognized the need for reasonable delay and for conscientious doubt, and our crime conditions in Chicago today certainly justify the legislative provision.

The law and law abiding citizenship need all the support and defense they can get in what has become something like a state of open warfare. When habeas corpus was created, the law abiding individual was under the shadow of autocratic power and his rights were in many respects vague and weak. But the citizen of the United States is no longer a weakling, and at this time we find him often rather too strong for government. It is not the commoner who needs defense so much, in this hour and place, but the commonwealth assailed by lawlessness. Within the limits of his permitted discretion, a judge should resolve doubts in favor of the peace and order of the community rather than in favor of a technical and academic conception of individual right.

And if the statute is not to be interpreted as granting a proper discretion in the courts to prevent the defeat of justice and proper inquiry by the authorities, then the statute should be amended.

LAUGHING IT OFF.

Col. James A. Logan, the American representative in Paris, is trying to get an agreement with Great Britain, France, and Belgium for the collection of the amount due for the maintenance of the American army on the Rhine and for the payment of the war damage account. The United States would like to get its war damage claims settled under the Dawes plan, taking a share of the amount paid by Germany in reparations.

Great Britain says that this can hardly be done legally or equitably because reparations are under the treaty of Versailles, which the United States did not sign. Therefore American claims for war damages should be settled directly with Germany. We may admit a share of reason to that contention, but Germany is to pay everything it can under the Dawes plan to the allies. It's an apple in which there ain't goin' to be no core. We have a genius for getting nothing but all the time appearing as old Scrooge collecting the tenement rents.

The other bill is a clearer case. The army, under Gen. Allen, went to the Rhine under the armistice and not under the treaty. It is the fate of the vanquished to pay for the keep of the victors on their soil. There is something to be said against that idea when you are urging your enemy to get on his feet and pay his debts. At the same time you wish off part of your military establishment expense on him. It's a rule, however, and Germany paid. By some hocus pocus the payments were absorbed by Great Britain, France, and Belgium, and the United States did not get any. We have been asking why ever since. There have been a number of replies, of which the most conclusive was "Try to get it."

We have thought from the beginning of this dispute that the best thing to do was to wipe the debt off the slate. It is $250,000,000, but our chance of getting any part of what already has been paid is about one in a hundred. We are invited to get it from Germany. A loan of $200,000,000 from Germany was regarded as the first necessity of recovery. We have a bill for $30,000,000 more than that. It is a pretty penny and justly due, but when we try to get it we're called penny pinchers. It isn't worth while.

There are debts which we write in ten figures which are not confused at all. These sums represent money borrowed with a promise to pay with interest. Great Britain is paying. The others are willing that we should forget it. That is unfair to Great Britain, which alone is meeting its international obligations and taxing itself heavily to do so. France borrowed $3,350,000,000 and no arrangements have been made for the payment of it or any interest which is rolling up.

We are getting in bad discussing pin money and chicken feed. We'd better drop this and take up the real bad news. Premier Herriot, in a good natured and witty speech, laughed off his Red peril in the chamber of deputies. Here's something else to laugh off. It's a case in which the British sense of humor seems to have gone absent without leave.

TOUGH ON THE POLICE.

Chief Collins says that cold weather has brought an emergency and has ordered the police to work ten hours a day, seven days a week. That takes away the day off and adds two hours to the working day, of course without increase of pay.

Riot or a bad strike would require such orders. The police expect to work continuously when they are needed in emergency. This is merely winter. It always boosts crime and the chief wishes to be observed as taking every necessary measures. Police work well done is not easy. If a policeman makes an arrest and must appear in court that is out of the time, not his duty time.

There are very few occupations in which two hours additional to the day and an extra day's work to the week could be ordered. If the chief had an unusual situation covering possibly a week or two it would be the reasonable thing to increase the force by increasing the hours on duty. But this is for months and to us it does not seem to be the way to meet the situation. Ten hours a day, seven days a week, carried into the winter months, will not increase police efficiency and may seriously impair it.

This city is rich enough to hire the policemen it needs. We know that Mr. Collins cannot decide that he needs more and hire them himself. That is up to the council and the mayor. The security of life and property in the city is number 1 in the obligations upon the city. That comes first. Political administration wastes money on all sides but it is close listed when policing the streets is the question.

If money could get police protection that is worth almost any sum. Give the chief more men if he needs them. Why take it out on the present force? Give the men decent treatment and their day off a week. It will be a better force with reasonable hours.

Editorial of the Day

CRIMINALS IN CALIFORNIA.
(Montana Record-Herald.)

The crimes committed at and about Los Angeles begin to make the southern California metropolis a rival of Chicago. The city on Lake Michigan harbors some thousands of robbers, murderers, thieves and other crooks, and the town that once was located on the long-dried Los Angeles river lately is becoming the scene of so many desperate crimes that it probably is rapidly accumulating a proportionately large criminal population. Of course, Chicago, with four times as many people, ought to and doubtless has four times as many crooks.

The holdups and murders in both places suggest that the time is not far off when the American people, in self-defense, will have to abandon their sentimental and fine-souled theories of criminal reform by kindness, medical treatment, education, and other philanthropic means, and begin to shoot criminals in squads against the wall.

In Chicago, Los Angeles and most large cities already the slum, dive and crook elements comprise a social factor largely in control of those places. This control accounts for the crimes. If it is not thrown off, and those elements suppressed, civilization in the United States may disappear. Little is being done to combat these conditions by the people of the cities, where greed and appetite, power and display override law and decency.

Yet there is still hope. The great population of the small towns and country districts is not much contaminated. Before civilization in the United States can be destroyed this population must also fall under the rule of the thieves and murderers, corrupt politicians and grafters, gunmen and gangsters, dive keepers and riffraff of the nation. And the probabilities are that, when it comes to the final struggle between the decent and law abiding people of the United States and the criminals, the latter will go under. Nevertheless it is high time society turned the searchlight and for maldeeds of civilization into the cities, and therein also set up the blank wall and the firing squad.

And if the statute is not to be interpreted as CURBING "MILK EPIDEMICS." PATRICK J. O'NEILL, in Massachusetts has become safe, that is, for the people who live in the larger cities and in the rural districts. For the people who live in the cities of 25,000 and less it still has hazards.

Dr. Kelley, the health commissioner, has been keeping track of milk borne epidemics of typhoid fever, septic sore throat, diphtheria, and septic sore throats have been almost eliminated. There still remains three reports on the subjects. The first dealt with the nine years—1907 to 1915, inclusive. The second with the four years—1915 to 1918, inclusive. The third with the five years—1919 to 1923, inclusive.

The larger cities where there is pasteurized milk principally is about 50 per cent greater than it is in the smaller places where most of the market milk is raw. However, the per capita use of milk in places of all sizes have decreased in recent years.

Dr. Kelley is a product of the increased price of milk and in spite of the efforts of dairymen and milkmen to get people to drink more milk.

One interesting observation relates to the difficulty in controlling milk borne typhoid fever. Milk borne typhoid fever, diphtheria, and septic sore throat have been almost eliminated. There still remains a fair amount of danger of milk borne typhoid fever.

SOMETHING POISONS YOU. B. E. writes: Practically since my arrival, four months ago, I have been covered with hives. I have been told it is on account of my rich blood and change of climate. I came from Canada. I have tried and spoken to doctors, dentists, pharmacists, salves, etc. but to no avail. They might die down for a few days, but will break out worse than ever all over my body.

REPLY. Buying blood medicines and applying salves for hives is wasting money and energy. It is not with your blood or with the climate.

You are eating something that is poison to you. Find out what it is and discontinue it. Changes made you do make in your diet about the time you began being entertained by hives?

CAUSE OF GALL STONES. C. M. writes: 1. What causes gall stones?

2. What do you think is the best way to get rid of them?

3. What causes a man's urine to have a bad odor over night?

REPLY. Infected gall bladder, typhoid fever, obesity, a woman, attaining 50 years of age, over largest proportion of gall stone cases is among the last, in her case women between 40 and 50 years of age, and those who have had typhoid fever at some time or other, maybe thirty or forty years before.

As to tuberculosis, the same lesson was taught. The amount of tuberculosis, and especially tuberculosis of bones, joints and glands, has decreased materially as the proportion of pasteurized milk has increased.

The consumption of milk per capita in the first period there were 163,697 cases of these diseases reported, of which 7,602 were traced to milk. There were seventy-two established milk epidemics. This gives an average for each of the nine years of 18,188 cases of all four diseases, of 345 cases traced to milk and of eight cases of typhoid fever.

Elmer Likes Society Night Program Fine

Social Register Artists Great, He Says.

BY ELMER DOUGLASS.

A checked story following a checkered night:

For zest and color the 8 to 9 o'clock Lyon & Healy concert was a society night, and the singing of the soprano by Huntington B. Henry, tenor, with his fine tenor voice, made this listener forget all about society or anything else but beautiful music. And we couldn't recognize any difference between the voice of Zoo Kendall Ames, soprano, and any other fine soprano not in the social register. We can't blame Leeds Mitchell for suggesting piano to play popular piano music after handling serious business as president of the Chicago stock exchange.

The musical event of the evening was Chopin's piano concerto, Andante Spianato and Polonaise, played from WMAQ at 8:30 by Leo and Eddie Friedman. The latter at the second piano. It seemed to be a free fantasia, happy for a while, then sad, then an argument by a number of voices, then a chase or an elopement, and at the end all the voices together told us all over again what it was all about and why they were so happy. A repetition would be apposite.

The best radio drama this listener ever heard was "The Phoenix," by Lawrence Irving, played at WMAQ. The two leading players, William Ziegler and Nourse and Alexander Carlisle Jenkins, were simply great. Wit scanned the world through the work in a most amazing way. And how deftly handled by these two master oratorical artists!

A turn to KYW, where "Marchets" was recognized; coming, it seemed, from an orchestra of human voices—what could be prettier? It was the Whaling Committee's Choral Club, Merton J. Eastman, director. The following selection: "There Was a Little Man," was as dainty as could be. Was glad to hear our own musical voice again, Mr. Eastman; and, bring back this orchestra of voices, please.

Announcer Quig Ryan of WGN asks us to send in our most embarrassing moments. Last Monday I should have quoted Michel Kuschelewsky as the "deep voiced baritone" instead of Vladimir Svetloff, and Ruth Racette as the one who did the fine soprano work in the last act. "The Tales of Hoffmann," instead of "Signes Lakhai," was the title of the play credit to Miss Racette in the Chicago Musical Club. Our account has been charged up to a bad cold.

In another vein, lack of space Monday morning, prevented reference to the recital given by Cameron McLean, basso, at WGN on Sunday evening. And here comes a radio from one of the most rare of musical hours.

There were eighteen songs, from simple lullabies to the bravura. But this artist could sing any song whatsoever and the last one heard would always sound the best.

SCOTT ANYNEW ENTENTE OF
FRANCE, BRITAIN,
AND ITALY LOOMSInterview of Chamberlain
Hints at Alliance.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1924: By The Chicago Tribune.]

ROME, Dec. 10.—Great Britain will remain in the Rhineland, occupying some other zone after the Cologne bridgehead has been evacuated.

Retirement from the Cologne area, which is expected about Jan. 10, five years after German ratification of the Versailles treaty, does not mean that English troops will be entirely withdrawn from Germany.

Instead, in order to preserve the interallied character provided for in the treaty, the English garrison will probably be transferred to the Coblenz region, which the Americans held after the armistice.

Austin Chamberlain, the British foreign secretary and the British delegate to the League of Nations Council, today explained Downing Street's viewpoint on this subject.

Pleased with Mussolini Talk.

Mr. Chamberlain stated he was extremely pleased with the result of his interviews with Premiers Herriot and Mussolini.

"It is idle to state that in conversations of a couple of hours we could solve all the difficulties confronting us in the two countries, but the result thus far have completely justified my trip to Paris and Rome for preliminary discussions with the respective chiefs of state," he remarked.

Mr. Chamberlain stated North Africa was one of the principal subjects discussed with M. Herriot and Sig. Mussolini, as questions vitally interesting France and Italy.

He declined to state whether Spain's partial evacuation of the Riff would affect the general situation in Spanish Morocco.

Didn't Mention War Debts.

"One subject we did not mention was the interallied war debts," Mr. Chamberlain said. "There is a meeting of the allied finance ministers scheduled for the near future to discuss this question, and we did not anticipate that by dealing with it here."

The general impression from Mr. Chamberlain's statements is that Great Britain, France and Italy are a long way towards an entente as a result of his conference, but there is still considerable difficulty in overcoming certain objections to Great Britain ratifying the peace protocol—the dominions' dissatisfaction and England's reluctance to abandon any sovereignty over her fleet which might result through placing her navy at the disposal of the League of Nations.

CRIME AND CHAOS
FOLLOW IN WAKE
OF LONDON FOGCity Is Lost in an Inky
Cloud.[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1924: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Dec. 10.—London went blind today in the worst fog of many years. The same sort of thick brownish gray fog that smothered the city, dislocating traffic and throwing the normal life of the community into chaos, blanketed all England and Wales, the air ministry reported.

Fog officials listed this evening show two deaths and scores of injured, of whom dozens were hurt seriously as a result of traffic accidents in London.

Considerable fire losses were suffered because fire engines were unable to bring aid except after long delay. The city is in the grip of a crime wave as thugs, pickpockets, purse snatches, holdups, and burglars merrily ply their trade, laughing at the police under the cover of darkness.

At noon today huge fairs lit Trafalgar square, with flares and searchlights at fifty important traffic crossings, in a vain attempt to pierce the inky blackness. All day the big electric signs of Piccadilly, which is London's Broadway, were burning in full force, but the largest could not be distinguished a few feet away.

The most serious accident occurred when a taxi hit a pedestrian, and a bus ran down a conductor who was changing a trolley of a street car. The most serious accident occurred when two buses smashed head on, telescoping both and seriously hurting fourteen persons.

COUGHLIN BALKS MOVE TO NAME AIR FIELD BODY

Too Many Commissions Already, He Says.

Objections of Ald. John J. Coughlin (left) in yesterday's council meeting backed the measure to name a commission of resolutions which would have empowered Mayor Dever to appoint a commission to select and obtain a conveniently located site within the city limits when Ald. George C. Crowe (42d) said that an attempt would be made to fill the scheme by referring it to a committee he had drawn the measure. Ald. Coughlin, which he had introduced at the suggestion of the mayor.

Ald. Coughlin Balks.

When Chicago's geographical position is considered there is no reason why the city should not be the greatest air port in the world, as it now is. Ald. George C. Crowe (42d) pointed out in his resolution. The resolution cited the war department's criticism of the city as "apathetic so far as aviation is concerned."

"I'm sick and tired of so many commissions usurping the functions of the city council," declared Ald. Coughlin. "Every few weeks we are asked to approve some commission or another commission designed to assume some aldermen's duty. There are aldermen as capable of selecting aviation fields and encouraging the development of aviation in Chicago as any commission that could be appointed. Let's send this resolution to a committee and see what happens to it."

ASKS AVIATION POLICY

A policy having for its object the encouragement of aviation with respect to both its civil and military uses is fundamentally sound, according to a letter sent to all Illinois senators and representatives in congress by W. R. Dawes, president of the Association of Commerce.

The letter urges the legislators to support sufficient appropriations to finance national guard and reserve corps aviation units, expand the air mail service, and permit resumption of the forest air patrol.

"It is believed this program which can be expanded as circumstances justify, will accomplish much for a renewal of interest in aviation and its logical development," Mr. Dawes said.

EDWARD HOLSLAG, MURAL PAINTER OF RENOWN, DIES

Edward Holstag, mural painter and interior decorator, died yesterday at the Glidden hospital in De Kalb. He was 64 years old and formerly was a member of the Palette and Chisel Club. He had been in poor health for more than a year. Mr. Holstag planned the general decorative scheme of the gold and gilded rooms in the Congress hotel and executed much of the work himself. Other examples of his work are to be found in the Hotel Sherman and the Baltimore hotel in Kansas City. He was consulted in regard to the decoration of the congressional library in Washington.

Mr. Holstag from time to time has exhibited portraits and other paintings at the Art institute.

Three Young Men Rob Jewelry Store of $8,000

Another diamond robbery was successful yesterday when three young men entered the jewelry store of Isaac Josephson, 111 W. Division street, and the Chicago Medical Society. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Delta R. Gotchy; his widow, and a daughter, Mrs. F. R. Leving.

P. J. Healy, Former Head of Piano Co., Dies in Paris

Paul J. Healy, former president of the Lyon & Healy company, died yesterday in Paris, according to a cablegram received by his brother, Mr. Healy, founder of the firm. He was 49 years old and had retired from business nine years ago because of ill health. His widow, who was Marie Alexander of Chicago, spent the winter with him in Switzerland. The arrangements have not been announced.

Apoplexy Causes Death of Dr. Edward D. Gotchy

Dr. Edward David Gotchy of 835

Cornelia avenue died suddenly yesterday following a stroke of apoplexy. Dr. Gotchy, whose life in Chicago was devoted to the practice of industrial surgery, was born on March 20, 1884, at Green Bay, Wis. He was a member of the American Medical Association, the Chicago Medical Society, and the Chicago Medical Society. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Delta R. Gotchy; his widow, and a daughter, Mrs. F. R. Leving.

The C. E. Falls Service company, an advertising agency at 111 W. Division street, is well up on the Good Fellow roll of honor this year. This company will give Christmas cheer to twenty-five families. Many other companies will receive a great deal of pleasure in following this example.

E. J. Cryer, 71, Dies at 186 North Michigan Avenue

E. J. Cryer, who has an office at 186 North Michigan avenue, will care for ten families. Hirahah for Mr. Cryer. He'll have a lot of fun.

Offer Cars to Carry Cheer

The Yellow Drive-It-Yourself System has offered the use of all of its motor cars in delivering Christmas packages to the poor. THE TRIBUNE is pleased to receive the offer and no doubt will make use of the machines.

It's His Sixteenth Year

"And it's more fun giving to ten poor kids than to the only two. The old, sick and the more disabled never have more fun than it is when the Good Fellows go out Christmas eve with their arms and motors laden with Christmas toys. Tell them to take our big families. We have only a few small families."

Several unusual Good Fellows answered the call during the day.

One said it was his sixteenth year as a Good Fellow. He left a check for $25, saying he was leaving town, but couldn't get until he'd left the check. He couldn't realize taking part in the game.

The C. E. Falls Service company, an advertising agency at 111 W. Division street, is well up on the Good Fellow roll of honor this year. This company will give Christmas cheer to twenty-five families. Many other companies will receive a great deal of pleasure in following this example.

The Yellow Drive-It-Yourself System has offered the use of all of its motor cars in delivering Christmas packages to the poor. THE TRIBUNE is pleased to receive the offer and no doubt will make use of the machines.

DEAF, DUMB FOR 19 YEARS, FLIGHT IN AIR AIDS CURE

Yesterday evening Gwendolyn Caswell, 22 years old, deaf and dumb since the age of 3, could speak a bit, and hear a bit. Perhaps she will have lost even the slight gift today, but local officers of the reserve flying corps believe it may be restored permanently.

For it was in an airplane, between 3 and 3:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon, that she partly recovered the use of her tongue and ears.

Miss Caswell, who lives at 8730 South Halsted street, is a close friend of Walter Kaufman, 3029 S. Broadway. The man in the Passes Society, an organization of the deaf and dumb, of which Miss Caswell is a member and in which Kaufman is interested.

Aviator Becomes Interested.

Lieut. Herbert L. Kumpfer of the reserve flying corps is a business associate of Kaufman. He became interested in Miss Caswell's case and suggested a flight at the Aero club field with other members of the association. Burt D. Burley, 1515 Hyde Park boulevard, offered to be her pilot.

Miss Caswell lost her hearing and her power of speech after illness in her home in London, England.

She was stone deaf and learned to read lips. Her vocal sounds were inarticulate. She came with her family to Chicago five years ago and since has been employed in the Gibson-Sykes photographic studio.

It has been known for years that sudden atmospheric pressure on the ear drums will sometimes relieve deafness. It was decided to test the cure with Miss Caswell.

She took off with Burley, in the presence of fourteen persons, at 3 o'clock. Burley went up, by slow degrees, until the plane had reached an altitude of 5,000 feet. He went into a side slip, but his passenger made no sign. Then he rose again to his former altitude and made a nose dive of 1,500 feet.

Nose Dive Helps Hearing.

Miss Caswell clapped her hand over her ears and Burley could see her lips move. "He repeated the nose dive several times, diving from altitudes where the air was thin to those where the pressure was heavy.

When they landed Miss Caswell was able to speak a few words, not distinctly, perhaps, but sufficiently articulate that friends might understand. They were the words she had pronounced, she said, for the past year.

Afterward, every one went into a hangar where there was a small phonograph. With the use of an air trumpet she could hear the music, she said.

Further flights are planned, the hope that Miss Caswell's deafness may be overcome to even a greater degree.

ALDERMEN WANT 4 YEAR TERMS, TO ASK VOTERS

Voters at the February election will be asked to approve a proposed amendment to the state law extending the two year aldermanic term to four years, it was decided by the city council yesterday.

If the scheme is approved by the voters, steps will be taken, according to Ald. Guy Guernsey (8th), who introduced the resolution to place the question on the ballot, to have the amendment passed by the legislature before the 1928 aldermanic election.

In the same meeting, after a prolonged debate on the right of Ald. O. Wallace (44th) and F. L. Link (48th) to be elected circuit court judges and sanitary trustee, respectively, to sit in the council until their successors have been elected and qualified, the council directed the preparation of statute amendments to provide means of filling vacancies which occur between elections.

The Month's Most Interesting Reading

NOVELS

The Skyrocket...by Adela Rogers St. Johns. A vivid new novel of the meteoric rise of Sharon Kimm from a Barbary Coast cafe dancer and poor extra girl to the heights of movie stardom. An intimate picture of the studio life of the Wonder City, by a realistic novelist to whom all Hollywood tells its secrets.

And They Lived Happily Ever After...by Meredith Nicholson. A brilliant novel of married people's morals by the author of "The House of a Thousand Candles" and many other powerful novels. A study of smart people of today who see how far they can stretch the moral code without breaking it.

The Pleasure Buyers...by Arthur Somers Roche. An astounding climax in the development of this tense and colorful mystery serial of life among the rich at Palm Beach.

SHORT STORIES

Nobody Sees the Waiter's Face...When O. Henry passed, Irvin S. Cobb was left alone in stories about New York's six million. In this tale he takes you into the heart of New York cafe life, and reveals one of the thousands of dramas that happen New Year's Eve.

A Man at the Crossroads...by Belle Burns Gromer, is a powerful tale of love and jealousy over which is cast the magic spell of the Orient.

Sir Philip Gibbs...recounts the amazing things sudden wealth did to a disheartened young author in "The Shock of Success."

Arnold Bennett...with his profound knowledge of character, shows that a man "impossible" to a girl's friends may be her ideal mate.

George Ade...America's best-known humorist wags his head over our national fondness for syncopated harmony in "Jazzmania."

The Farm—Plain and de Luxe...Where are the days when the mitten kids went to school in a big sled with a hot brick under the straw? John T. McCutcheon pictures farm life after Progress got through with it.

Samuel Scoville, Jr....noted writer of nature stories, tells what happened when the honey-badger, a remarkable South African beast that hunts and fights with a bird pal, met a cobra and a black leopard.

J. S. Fletcher...whose detective stories have delighted Kings and Presidents, tells a mystery story of murder, a missing diamond and a spot of green ink.

The Wooling of Lindi...Bruno Lessing's amusing Lapidowitz, scattering I. O. U.'s, discovers a new way to earn a dishonest penny.

Loves at First Fight...H. C. Witwer originates more new slang in this story of a tender-hearted prize fighter.

Katherine Newlin Burt...in "THE INTRUDER" tells how a western rancher, out of the kindness of his heart, promoted a bigamous marriage.

For Love or Money...A sparkling Frank R. Adams love story about a girl who chose a millionaire for a husband by mistake!

W. Somerset Maugham...Her husband thought her pearls were false—the dealer in jewels knew they were real! Here's a dramatic plot for a novel used prodigiously by Somerset Maugham in his short story, "Ma. Know-All."

A. S. M. Hutchinson...who wrote "If Winter Comes," relates his adventures along the Amazon in "BUGS AND NUTS."

William Rose Benét...A swinging ballad of the cattle-range, in which the black cowboy rides his "flying flame" of a horse to Kingdom Come.

What's in My Name...by Neyra McMein. Why did this famous magazine cover artist change her name from Marjorie to Neyra? What is this science of numerology that brings good fortune if they are named according to its rules? Neyra tells you.

That WAS a Happy New Year...O. O. McIntyre, thinking thoughts of long ago, opens the road to happy childhood for himself and every man.

Winston S. Churchill...the brilliant English statesman, once a war correspondent, supplies a thrilling chapter from his own war experiences in "A TRAPPED ARMORED TRAIN."

LONDON, Dec. 10.—His Majesty's theater, one of the finest of the London show houses, is a complete wreck inside today, as a result of student riots there last night following the historic Oxford-Cambridge football game.

A mob of Cambridge students who came to London as a cheering section went to the theater last night to see the show and drown out their sorrows after their defeat, 11 to 6, at the hands of their ancient rivals. It was quite evident when they entered that they had already started on the drawing out process, but the management was not prepared for the scenes that developed.

A Light Bombardment.

While the chorus girls were fitting at the beginning of the second act one impudent youth unstruck the electric bulbs from his box and started bombarding the girls with them. The other collegians thought it was a swell idea. Soon the entire stage was popping under a fusillade of smashing glass. The girls fled screaming to the wings and the curtain was rung down by the stage manager. Then bedlam broke loose in real earnest.

Cambridge may not be the equal of Oxford on the rugby field, but its students acknowledge no superiors when it comes to demolishing theaters. The students took out their knives and ripped the upholstery from the floors and walls, and tore whole blocks of seats loose from the walls, hurling them through the glass and windows.

Lick Up Bar.

When the auditorium job was completed they made their way to the bar, where they drank up all they could and then smashed the rest, leaving the room full of broken bottles.

The management appeared before the Cambridge authorities this morning, claiming damages. They said that they would like to call the police because it knew the students would relish nothing more than a clash with the bobbies, which would have meant more wreckage.

Saves Her $15,000 Gems;
Struck on Head by Thug

Mrs. Milled Fierstein managed to save her $15,000 worth of diamonds when she was struck on the head by a bandit who waited for her in the vestibule of her apartment at 6317 Magnolia avenue Tuesday night. A blow from the gunman's pistol made her head bleed.

O. E. BRADFUTE RECHOSEN HEAD OF FARM BUREAU

O. E. Bradfute was reelected president of the American Farm Bureau Federation at the close of the organization's three day annual meeting at the Congress hotel yesterday, defeating George C. Jewett of the state of Washington by a vote of 35 to 11. E. A. O'Neal, Montgomery, Ala., was elected vice president to succeed J. F. Reed, St. Paul, Minn.

The new board of thirteen directors, selected by the delegates at the convention, are: Mid-western region—Charles E. Hearst, Des Moines, Ia.; J. F. Reed, St. Paul, Minn.; S. H. Thompson, Quincy, Ill., and M. L. Noon, Jackson, Mich. Eastern region—

G. M. Putman, Concord, N. H.; Enos Lee, Yorktown Heights, N. Y., and C. Brubaker, Littitz, Pa. Southern region—P. C. Johnson, Atlanta, Ga.; W. T. Harris, Morgantown, Ky., and Harry Williams, Dallas, Tex. Western region—Frank Evans, Salt Lake City, Utah; A. C. Hardison, Santa Paula, Cal., and W. A. Hardy, Fernley, Nev.

Among the other resolutions passed were one endorsing the principles of a farmer's cooperative corporation created to preserve the domestic market for the American agricultural producer at an American price.

A resolution was adopted opposing the appointment of a commission that would delay the arrival of a policy on Muscle Shoals, and urged the "utilization of the largest portion of the hydroelectric power for the manufacture of concentrated nitrogen, limiting the profits to 8 per cent."

MRS. HILLMAN IS BACK AT HOME OF HER PARENTS

Dorothy Hillman, who left her wealthy husband of a month, returned from New York yesterday. Her husband, Edward Hillman Jr., who lives at the Lake Shore hotel, was not at the train to greet her.

When reporters questioned her as to a reconciliation, and when the photographers boomed their flashlights she requested that a railroad station guard "chase those silly fools away." Then she and her mother, Mrs. George W. Martin of Evanston, ran for a taxi cab, which hurried them to the Martin home in Evanston. There was just about no reporters.

Then her father appeared and said she was suffering from a nervous breakdown, due to the publicity.

Later she will tell her future plans.

Mr. Martin said.

A coroner's jury returned a verdict of suicide yesterday in the case of Josephine Taggart, 21, of 727 West Elm street, whose body was found in the lake. Ill health was ascribed as the cause.

Mr. Martin said.

For the Good of Your Soul and 1000 Other Reasons

"I pledged myself $5 per week twenty years ago and have kept that up ever since. I am the most satisfied man in the world. And why? Because I learned how to save and I got the habit. With that habit I created without knowing it the greatest thing a man can have—character."

This is an extract from a letter a floorman sent the vice-president of a large wholesale house a month or so ago.

Probably no one starts saving with the idea of developing his character. So few of us think our characters need strengthening! We start saving for the concrete purpose of buying a home, or a fur coat, or a bond, or a business, or bride's furniture, or to pay off debts, or because some one whom we feel we must obey told us we should.

It doesn't take much courage to start saving. The first deposit is easily made on the impulse of the moment. But it does take courage to keep on saving. You have not only to say, "I will," but you have also to say, "I won't." You have to say "No" to your own inclination, and you must say "No" to friends who would entice you into spending, or who jeer at you for being "tight." You must be master of yourself.

But there are compensations. You get the object you started saving for, and first thing you know, people are looking up to you as a person of stability and consequence and character. Perhaps that is nature's spiritual recompense for the temptations you have resisted. And you must remember that in learning to save you have learned what is more important—how to spend.

If you have difficulty in holding on to the savings impulse, perhaps a talk with our Service Station manager will help you.

Whatever your favorite radio set may be you can have it in a Victrola

Every prominent manufacturer of radio equipment has offered to make radio sets which might be built into Victrola instruments. But with so many excellent radio sets on the market we are unwilling to limit our customers' freedom of choice—unwilling to commit them to a built-in proposition which is likely to become obsolete.

Instead we have so modified the construction of our instruments that virtually any of the more reliable radio sets may be installed as a complete unit ready to operate as soon as delivered.

In this way our customers may combine the radio set they prefer with the Victrola, the one instrument which in giving them the music of their own choice at whatever time they may choose to hear it offers such a service as has never yet been equalled.

There is but one Victrola and that is made by the Victor Company

THOMPSON AIDS CUT WESBEY OFF PARK PAY ROLL

BANKERS REJECT
MAJ. KELKER AS CAR APPRAISER

City's Next Move to Be Decided Today.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Warfare between William Hale Thompson and William H. Wesbeary advanced another step yesterday. Thompson's sympathizers on the Lincoln park board, who three months ago defeated Wesbeary from the superintendency to the secretaryship, completed their job by removing Wesbeary's name from the pay roll.

That did it, by electing Maj. Carlos Ames as secretary. While A. Thompsonian, WESBEARY, Ames primarily is aligned with Col. Frank L. Smith, chairman of the Republican state central committee. Outside of the party, he is a good fellow, it was said, was a wise move, because it prevents Gov. Len Small from insisting upon Wesbeary's being reinstated as secretary without possibly offending Col. Smith.

The Thompson organization now is expected to attempt to take over the Lincoln park patronage, although Lundin and his friends through Wesbeary, Lundin is expected to battle against this, and Gov. Small will have to rule whether the spoils go to Thompson or Lundin.

DE FREES IS BOOMED

Because of the probability of a deadlock between other candidates, the position there is that he is destined to be chosen as the next president. That of Joseph H. DeFrees are urging him to become a candidate for membership on the south park board. It was said he was being urged as a nonpolitical candidate. He lives at the Windermere hotel.

The argument heard there is that Commissioner L. L. Patterson, Democrat, cannot be reelected because of the attitude of the Republican majority on the circuit judges. Thomas J. Kealy is also mentioned as a candidate.

wednesday that he was unable to select six satisfactory engineers to appraise the Surface Lines from the list compiled by the council transportation committee.

"We suggest," went on Mr. Strawn, "that you send us the names of six more engineers acceptable to you and we will attempt to return six names satisfactory to us."

Maj. R. F. Kelker, selected by you as a car appraiser, is your engineer and cannot be called disinterested. He has an unimpeachable character and were he not employed by the committee, we would be glad to have him one of the appraisers.

Some Not Acceptable.

"Some of the nominees you sent us as appraisers are acceptable; others are not. We refrain from designating each, as that would reflect upon the engineers named."

Chairman Schwartz of the council committee and Corporation Counsel Busch looked upon this turn in the negotiations as serious.

The question now is whether we should continue the negotiations, since the bankers have rejected Maj. Kelker," said Ald. Schwartz. "That I shall decide for myself before tomorrow, when the committee meets."

Mayor Dever did not take such a depressing view. He said he thought that engineers acceptable to both sides could be selected. Maj. Kelker will suggest half a dozen more at the committee session this afternoon.

Coughlin Asks Subway Vote.

Ad. Coughlin presented to the city council yesterday afternoon the following ordinance:

"That the following question of public policy be submitted to the voters of the city of Chicago at the election to be held in said city on the 24th day of February, 1925:

"Shall the city council of the city of Chicago grant a franchise to the building of a comprehensive subway to be financed by private interests?"

He had the ordinance referred to the committee on local transportation, before which he said he would present this afternoon, and ask that his ordinance be considered or a date set for discussion and deliberation.

"I favor no particular private interest," said Coughlin, "but the mayor's plan is good and this proposal, if approved, we would certainly have definite instructions to go ahead. All I want is a comprehensive subway, one from Devon avenue to 73rd street and west to Crawford avenue."

Ad. Jensen presented an order to the council intended to convert the elevated to a subway, the route of the elevated to be such between Western and Dearborn avenues. This was referred to the committee on local transportation.

THE real cause of skin trouble—rashes, blackheads, excessive oiliness, etc.—is way down in the lower layers of the skin. It cannot be expected therefore that mere surface remedies can reach the disorder.

Thousands of physicians are daily prescribing Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap. They know this gentle, yet effective treatment does sink deep, and will often come away in a few days the most stubborn rash as well as a trifling blemish. Cleaner from cellar to garret!

What wife would not keep her home immaculate? What husband would not help her—if he knew how it could be done with less work, with less expense? Keeping a house clean in winter is largely a matter of preventing dust and dirt from originating inside the house. Most homes would be clean if the fuel used were clean—and the fuel can be clean.

Chicago Solvay Coke is a clean, uniform fuel made in different sizes for home heating plants—hot water boilers, warm air furnaces and stoves. It burns evenly and completely, leaving but few ashes to handle. It burns without smoke and soot. Chicago Solvay Coke, ton for ton, will give you more heat than hard coal and will cost you 20% less to buy.

Telephone your dealer for a few tons of this cleaner, more efficient, more economical fuel. Tell him, too, that you would like a service man to call to look over your heating plant and show you, if he can, how to get better results from both your plant and your fuel. This service is free and your dealer can arrange for it or you may call us direct.

FRANKS $6,000 REWARD SPLIT AMONG EIGHT

Man Crowe Said Solved Crime Gets Nothing.

Distribution among eight civilians of $6,000 offered for information upon which the arrest and conviction of the murderers of 14 year old Robert Franks could be assured, was announced yesterday by a committee composed of Chief of Police Collins, Attorney R. E. Crowe and Frank Hanna, reporters for the Chicago Daily News.

Two of those who will share in the fund, which includes $500 offered by Jacob Frank, father of the lad and $1,000 posted by Chief Collins, are James W. Mulroy and Alvin H. Goldstein, reporters for the Chicago Daily News, each will receive $1.50.

Six others get money.

Six others were awarded amounts ranging from $100 to $500. Honorable mention was accorded to fifteen policemen as well as to Frank Blair, the driver who recovered Leopold's typewriter on which the ransom note was written, and Jacob Weinstein, manager of the Almer Coe & Co., 105 North Wabash avenue.

In the presentation of evidence against Leopold and Loeb, both before the grand jury and in the courtroom, the state's attorney presented the proposition that enabled the authorities to fasten the murder upon Leopold. Until the time that Weinstein identified the glasses as Leopold's, the police were practically convinced of the innocence of both Leopold and Loeb.

What Crowe Told Jurymen.

State's Attorney Crowe told the grand jury that "Weinstein solved the crime." He said that before Weinstein's discovery the prosecution hadn't a leg to stand on. In the trial before Judge Caverly, Assistant State's Attorney Savage said if it were not for Weinstein "Leopold and Loeb would be walking the streets today."

In addition to Mulroy and Goldstein, those who will receive a cash award are as follows:

Tony Minke, Bob, Ind., who found young Leopold in a car on Dec. 30, 1920, and found Leopold's glasses near the salver; Edward Hunt, 633 South Aberdeen street, who found the chief used to kill the boy; John Koleka, 1405 West 71st street, $300; Walter Knitter, 1216 West 87th street, $300; George Knitter, 1216 West 87th street, $300.

Helped Carry Body.

The latter trio assisted Minke in carrying young Franks body from the salver to the morgue, where it was later identified by Mulroy and Goldstein.

Besides Mr. Weinstein and Blair, the persons given honorable mention include Policeman J. J. Gortland, Oscar Staff, 10051 Avenue L, a state game warden; Michael Hughes, former chief of detectives; Sergt. J. Q. Johnson, Sergt. George Johnson and Policeman George Horner; and William Brennan, all assigned to the state's attorney's office; Lieut. Joseph Borowsky; Sergt. Edward Anderson and Hugh Byrnes, and Policemen M. Mack, Bernard Heavey, Richard St. German, Charles Enos, and Frank Milligan.

ALABAMA POWER COMPANY ENTERS SHOALS DEBATE

McKellar Charge Is Denied.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10.—(Special) A charge that the Underwood bill is drawn in the interest of the Alabama Power company enlivened the debate in the senate on Muscle Shoals legislation today.

Senator McKellar [Dem., Tenn.] made the accusation. He favored amendment of the bill to require government ownership and operation and to eliminate the provisions of the Underwood measure which would have given the power interests a seat on the board of the opium traffic.

A clash between Mrs. Hamilton Wright, American delegate, and H. W. Clayton, the American delegate, followed.

Mr. Clayton, the American delegation from Wright.

India, enlivened another subcommittee session where Article 1 of the American proposals was being discussed.

Mr. Clayton had just finished a lengthy survey of India's needs for opium, particularly in the treatment of cattle for the other ailments.

Mr. Wright interjected: "It has always seemed strange to me that India, of all the oriental countries, should be the sole one needing opium.

BAN AND LANDIS FIGHT PROVES TO BE A "FAKE"

New York, Dec. 10.—[Special.]—The first move in a move to restore harmony and good will in major league baseball was taken by the American league at its meeting in the Hotel Belmont today.

After passing an emphatic vote of confidence in Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis, the magnates appointed a committee of three "to wait upon Mr. Landis to the end that fullest harmony may be restored and full cooperation obtained in the present agreement under which the major and minor leagues are operating."

This resolution, practically the only action taken during the two hour session, contained no rebuke to President Ban Johnson, but in speeches made during the meeting it was learned Col. Jacob Ruppert and other club owners pleaded for an end to the Landis-Johnson feud, telling Johnson his maneuvers with the commission were hurting the game and injuring the financial interests of the owners.

Magnates are the "Goats."

Col. Ruppert, it was ascertained, pointed out that the two main parties to the warfare were two men who had no money invested in baseball. The Yankees, he said, the real victims were the magnates, who had put their dollars into the game and were now finding them endangered by the inability of the two leaders to get along amicably.

He then made a strong plea that Landis and Johnson show themselves "big enough" to bury the hatchet and cooperate. The first step is the naming of a committee to go to Landis and work to restore harmony.

Whether the American league magnates will offer the olive branch to Mr. Landis and declare a truce. In the opinion of baseball men, Johnson will be forced to go along with this movement or step out. A recurrence of his quarreling with Landis would make the resolution only a scrap of paper and undo all the efforts of the peace committee, it was pointed out. In effect, the American league has disavowed responsibility for further attacks on Landis.

Text of Resolution.

The resolution was introduced by Clark Griffith, Washington president, and a friend of Johnson—at least until Johnson's attack upon the world's series. The vote was unanimous. Following is the resolution:

Resolved, That we take this occasion to reaffirm publicly our confidence in the soundness of the methods and ability of Kenesaw Mountain Landis, who was drafted from a high and honorable position in the federal government into the service of baseball; and, be it further

Resolved, That we firmly believe that the game's greatest security and safety for the future lies in the fullest cooperation between the two major leagues and Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis; and, be it further Resolved, further, That a committee of three, consisting of Messrs. Ruppert, Barnard, and Shibe, is hereby appointed by the American league to wait upon Commissioner Landis to the end that fullest harmony may be restored and full cooperation gained in the present agreement under which the major and minor leagues are now operating.

Support the Peacemakers.

Col. Ruppert will probably be the leader in the league's movement to restore peace. Although friendly to Johnson in the past, the Yankee owner is too much of a business man to approve some of his acts and utterances, and he firmly believes that Landis and Johnson, as stewards of the men who have their fortunes invested in baseball, should serve the owners rather than their own personal interests.

At the meeting of the board of directors Johnson presented his evidence supporting his charged that gamblers were active in the Pacific Coast league last season. After Johnson had read the evidence the directors, of which Ruppert was one, decided it was not legal proof. Furthermore, it was pointed out that the league had no jurisdiction over the affairs of another league, and Johnson was advised to submit the evidence to Landis or to the Pacific Coast league.

Other Officers Elected.

In the league meeting no mention was made of these charges, nor of Johnson's accusations in the Dolan-O'Connell scandal in the rival circuit.

RICKARD HOT TO MATCH TOMMY AND JACK AGAIN

New York, Dec. 10.—[Special.]—Two world's championship bouts, one or both of which may be staged before the close of the present indoor season, 100m as strong, are possibilities in the program of the Christmas fund benefit show which was held in Madison Square Garden last night, and Promoter Tex Rickard today lost little time in getting the break of competing arrangements for the matches.

They are popular for style alone, for their remarkable wearing qualities.

"The Tie of a Thousand Knots"

One of these bouts in prospect is a world's heavyweight championship clash between Jack Dempsey, holder of the title, and Tommy Gibbons, while the other is a world's middleweight titlist bout in which Harry Greb will defend his laurels against Tiger Flowers, the sensational Atlanta Negro batter.

Tommy Earns Chance.

That Gibbons, by his decision, six round knockout victory over Kid Norrell, had clinched for himself a return meeting with the world's champion, was unanimously by local boxing experts today. Rickard, who heretofore has been more or less skeptical regarding the drawing possibilities of a Dempsey-Gibbons bout in the east, made no attempt to hide his enthusiasm today, and immediately set to work outlining details for the match.

Prior to the Gibbons-Norrell bout it had been agreed that Dempsey-Gibbons meeting in the Garden on May 5, expediting that sentimental reasons prompted this desire, in view of the fact that it would mark the last boxing show to be held in the historic arena, which is doomed to razed after the close of the present indoor season.

Today, while not disclosing anything definite about the bout, Rickard said that it is now considered the bout too big an attraction, as a result of Gibbons' fine showing Tuesday night, to be held indoors, and that in all likelihood it would be staged outdoors. The entire master, however, will remain in abeyance until Rickard confers further with Jack Dempsey's manager.

May Meet Goldstein.

There is a possibility, too, that Gibbons may be seen in action in an important bout in the east before he faces Dempsey.

After his conference with Rickard, Kane filed a formal challenge with the New York state athletic commission for a championship bout with either Mike McGuire or Gene Tunney. On hearing of the challenge Charley Rose, who looks after McGuire's interests, stated that the light heavyweight champion would be ready to defend his title against Gibbons any time a promoter stepped forward to clinch the match.

Following his usual custom, Gibbons, the home man, has little time for barreling getting away from the glamor of his triumphs and returning to the quiet of his own fireside. Up early, the St. Paul boxer spent the morning in packing his luggage at his quarters at the Hotel Alameda and then, unburdened by his manager, his wife, and two of his children, Gibbons left shortly after noon on the Century for Chicago.

Talaber Bets $50 He Can Pin Kilonis in Half Hour

If Lou Talaber, middleweight wrestling champion, succeeds in throwing John Kilonis, one fall in thirty minutes at the Star and Garter tomorrow night, he will receive many challenges from other middleweight under the same conditions. The mid-weight champion has wagered $50 with Kilonis that he can turn the trick in the specified time. Under the conditions it should be a fast and interesting struggle. In the other bout Jim Londos, the Greek, will take holds with Charley Leppanen.

When Gift-Giving Takes a Personal Turn

Embroidered Shawls Are Gifts Assured of Welcome

Intricately embroidered and brilliant, with color they lend their supple silks to many drapings, as may be noted in the sketches above.

Some Embroidered All Over by Hand Or of Plain Silk with Knotted Fringe

Marvelous flowers bloom on the shawls that are embroidered. $65. Those of silk without embroidery may be chosen in many shades. $37.50. Both styles are finished with wide fringes tied by hand. Other shawls, $85 to $350.

Colorful Knitted Shawls from Abroad

Very unusual are these shawls knitted of rich silks in effective striped patterns. They, too, are finished with rich-looking knitted fringe. Not sketched. Interestingly priced, $15.

Smaller embroidered shawls of silk. These are 40 inches square and are embroidered all over with flowers and leaves—quaint and lovely as shoulder shawls, priced $19.75.

Third Floor, North.

Silk Undergarments Crepe de Chine Night-Dresses

A deep "V" shaped yoke of lace and embroidered net is set into the crepe de Chine night-dress sketched right. In pastel shades. $8.95. Other styles are priced $5 to $29.75.

Silk Pajamas Are Lacy or Tailored

One is of lustrous crepe-back satin—that's the style sketched at the left. The jacket is edged all 'round with Calais-pattern lace and lace finishes the trousers. These are priced $15.75.

Embroidered, row on row, are the pajamas sketched at the right. With a spray of exquisite silk flowers on the jacket. $15.75. In other groups, pajamas at $8.95 to $49.50.

Third Floor, North.

House Dresses

Delightfully individual dresses that bring a new interest to so practical a garment as a house dress.

One Is in Coat Style Of Soft Corduroy

This is sketched at the left, and one notes in the simple lines very definite smartness. A narrow vestee and collar are of creamy fabric. $7.95.

Trim New House Dresses

Very attractive are these house dresses of light wool fabric in stripes or challis patterns. The becoming collar of net is edged with lace. Sketched at the right. $10.75.

Third Floor, East.

Silk Night-Dresses All Made by Hand

Of that beautifully lustrous crepe de Chine usually found only in undergarments from abroad, with hand-drawn work and filet lace. $10.75. Envelope chemises, $5.95. Two-piece sets, $5.95 garment. Sketched below.

Third Floor, North.

Negligees and Lingerie

GIFTS one woman chooses to give another. Practical though they are—in them one wants the charm that comes from silken fabrics, lovely laces and the exquisite touches, all with that fineness and daintiness which mean good taste.

Charming New Negligees Are Fashions in Themselves

Each season brings some lovely new fashion in negligees—individual and distinctive.

Delicate brocade fashions the imported negligee sketched at the center. Fluffy edgings of marabou lend becoming softness. In many unusual color combinations. Priced $69.75.

Third Floor, North.

Just such lingerie and negligees one finds here in these delightful groups. Here are house dresses and the shawls whose vogue this season is so well established—as well as wee frocks and tiny suits for all the merry little folks at Christmas time.

Charming New Negligees Are Fashions in Themselves

There is comfort in the quilted negligee of rayon, sketched at the right above. $25.

One may select a negligee of black satin with a pattern of flowers and butterflies stamped in the cloth so that it has a deep and velvety texture. At the left above. $85. Others, $10.75 to $185.

Third Floor, North.

In Babies' Own Section

Like flowers are the little frocks and coats here that bring solution for many a gift problem. That they are so varied, both in style and pricing, provides for nearly every gift plan.

Smart Coats of Squirrel Lock Warm Fur Robes to Match

Very jaunty is the little fur coat sketched below. The squirrel lock is beautifully patterned. $69.75. The robe of squirrel lock to match, also sketched below, is priced $47.50.

Coats of crepe de Chine with collar and cuffs edged with Irish lace. Sketched right. $13.75.

Coats for the tiniest baby are of crepe de Chine with embroidered edges. Sketched. $12.

The lacy Afghan and pillow, sketched, are of embroidered net edged with frilling. The Afghan priced $10.75. The pillow case, $4.75.

Third Floor, North.

Ruffled Party Frocks

The sleeveless frock, sketched, is of Georgette crepe in pastel shades. $13.75. The little boy's suit of linen from France is all hand made. Sketched. $10.75.

Third Floor, North.

CARSON PIRIE SCOTT AND COMPANY

Lovely Silk Undergarments

Frillings of footings and flower-like appliques are trimming for the crepe de Chine undergarments sketched below. Night-dresses, $10.75. Envelope chemises, $5.95. Two-piece sets, $5.95 each garment.

MONEY CALLED ENEMY OF TRUTH BY CLERGYMAN

BY SCRUTATOR.

A clergyman who trounces the "profit motive" in industry in a recent pamphlet intimates that money is the foe of truth. This is an old charge, but he states it forcibly: "The inhibitions that love of money puts around truth seeking are too obvious to need repetition. Now, however, they compensated for by any patronage of the arts and sciences by a few successful money makers, for only a minority of these will support the search for truth into the economic organization of society without which all other truth is vitiated."

Isn't it curious that there was no such thing as "free speech" until after the "profit motive" began to function as one of the strongest social forces among the peoples of western Europe?

Socialistic thinkers throughout one very valuable line of thought to the modern world. They were the first to perceive that our present social system had not always existed, but came out of an older form.

Capitalism has been well defined as "production for the use of others, acquisition for the benefit of self," in contrast to the production of society in which production was "more directly for use." It is the "acquisition for the benefit of self" that became a powerful social factor with the decline of feudalism, and the immense increase in human wealth and welfare since then must be very largely attributed to it. Since it is the only new motive that has been created, it is the only new and social impulse we do others business at their old stands during the dark ages. All the evils that enemies of the "profit motive" find in society today, were rampant then.

According to the writer's observation, those who talk the most about "expression of truth" today have little use for the principle of free speech when put to the test.

NATIONAL CITY, REPUBLIC BANKS TO MERGE DEC. 22

Consolidation of the National City Bank of the Republic and the National City Bank, a $90,000,000 banking house, will be in effect at the opening of business on Monday, Dec. 22, according to announcement made yesterday by George H. Miller, vice-chairman of the consolidated institutions. The consolidated banks will then be operating as one in the former Corn Exchange National Bank building, Adams and La Salle streets, to be known as the National Republic Bank building.

One hundred or more armed guards, including all, will guard the removal of the assets of the National City Bank of the Republic, including $50,000 in cash, from the present bank quarters in the New York Life building, La Salle and Monroe streets, to the new home Sunday. The following Sunday the assets and $40,000 in cash will be moved from the National City bank, at Dearborn and Monroe streets, to the new quarters.

The new bank will be known as the National Bank of the Republic. John A. Lynch will retain his title as chairman of the board of directors.

—and No Place to Go!

We find ourselves, almost without realizing it, a nation on wheels.

We drive or ride in 16,000,000 motor vehicles.

We pack the paved highways coming in and out of town. We over-run even so-called remote regions. And we are pounding to pieces all but permanent roads.

Next year 4,000,000 new cars will be on the road. Compared to this increase, the mileage of new permanent roads will be insignificant.

We don't want to be a nation on wheels, with no place to go.

The answer is, build more, and where necessary, wider concrete roads—and start building them now.

Not in a long time have general conditions been so favorable for carrying on such public works as permanent highway building.

Your highway authorities are ready to carry on their share of this great public work. But they must have your support.

Tell them you are ready to invest in more Concrete Highways, now.

TRIBUNE WANT ADS MAKE EASY SALES!

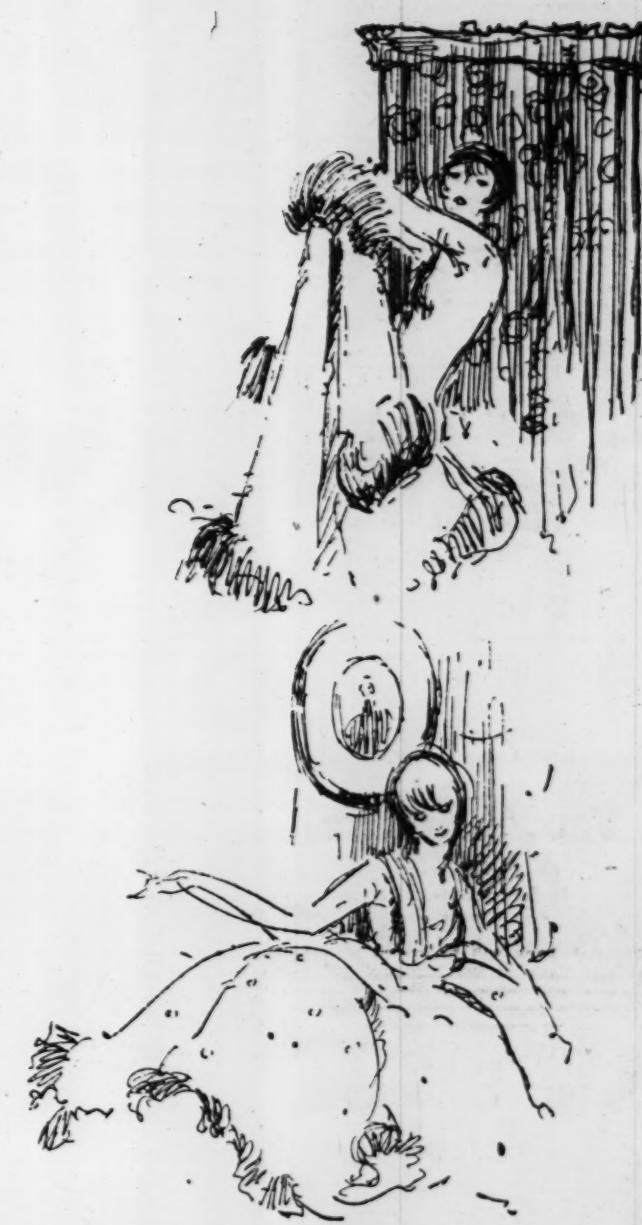

FROM the time your Tribune Want Ad is written in longhand and handed to a clerk over the counter at The Tribune's Want Ad Store, or read to a Tribune Adtaker over the phone, till the time it finally appears in the paper it goes through many hands and processes.

First it is carefully checked for accuracy, then it is censored and sorted into "takes" for the typesetters. Next a linotype operator sets it in type, then it is proofread, corrected and classified so that it may be found easily by the reader. After that it is locked up in page forms and a matrix made.

Then a cylindrical stereotype casting is made and locked on the presses. Then the Want Ad Section is printed and inserted as an integral part of the completed newspaper. The complete paper is loaded on trucks and distributed to the out-lying newspaper dealer, who delivers it to your front door. Other trucks take Tribunes to the fast mail trains, whence they are delivered to the most intelligent and enterprising people throughout the Middle West.

This highly detailed process is repeated for 616,000 papers every 24 hours. Between Friday morning and Saturday afternoon an average of 10,000 additional Want Ads are put through the same process, to be printed in 950,000 Sunday papers. Only the perfection of The Tribune mechanical processes and the efficiency of its service make possible such an enormous distribution of your message at a cost so low.

There is only one thing to keep in mind. Remember, in writing your Want Ad, to give enough of the details of your offer to enable the reader to know if yours is the offer for which he is looking. Send for The Tribune's free booklet, "Wording a Want Ad to Make It Pay."

THE Tribune Want Ad Section can find your prospects for anything salable, if you will but use a Want Ad worded adequately to its task of stimulating the reader to action. If you have a house, a vacant lot or a car for sale, your first step towards a sale is to find prospects, and there are financially-able prospects a-plenty in The Tribune's great circulation. Merely call Central 0100 and ask for an Adtaker. If you are a telephone subscriber, we will charge your Ad, and bill you later.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

POST-ELECTION ORDERS FLOOD STEEL INDUSTRY

BY O. A. MATHER.

Stimulus given to trade and industry by the election of President Coolidge was strikingly illustrated by reports from the steel industry. A veritable flood of orders for steel has been received with which even steadily expanding operations are unable to keep pace.

The United States Steel corporation reported an increase of 506,693 tons in unfilled orders last month, which was much larger than commonly expected. The increase occurred although plant operations have been increased to around 80 per cent of capacity at present. Last month was the largest gain in unfilled orders since September, 1922, and also marked the fourth consecutive month to show an increase.

Amount of Unfilled Orders.

While shipments last month ran between 500,000 and 1,000,000 tons, unfilled orders were close to 1,500,000 tons or more than finished capacity. Unfilled orders on Nov. 30 totalled 4,031,360 tons, the largest amount since last April.

The figures are gratifying, but should not be construed as the election there was a decided change in general sentiment concerning production. The steel industry is as good as present that if I were to venture words of advice I would say, Let us proceed steadily, naturally, with a view of preventing the inevitable result of recklessness, extravagance, or greed. If we are careful and conscientious we may prosper, assist in maintaining stability, and secure reasonable profits, without increasing costs of living, which in some lines and directions are excessive.

Freight Traffic Holds Up.

Another indication of the strong tide of trade is the railroad freight movement, which is showing less than the usual seasonal decline. Freight loadings for the week ended Nov. 29 totalled 78,531 cars, an increase of 45,550 cars, or more than 5 per cent, over the corresponding week last year. Due to the Thanksgiving day holiday, however, there was a decrease of 13,191 cars from the preceding week.

The current loadings show a gain of 22,409 cars in merchandise and miscellaneous freight compared with a year ago, while coal loadings increased 15,420 cars.

With this continued heavy traffic, the railroads have inquiries pending for 109,600 tons of rails and large amounts of equipment.

Missouri Pacific Merger Authorized.

Another big railroad consolidation reached its final stage yesterday. The Missouri Pacific, given authority by the Interstate Commerce commission to proceed with its purchases in New Orleans, Texas and Mexico, and the consequent issues and exchanges of securities.

WANTED-MALE HELP.

Salesmen, Solicitors, Etc.

A MAN MUST EAT.

In accordance with this fact, we have organized a plan which grade men who have experience and who are willing to work for our organization high grade men who have business who have heretofore been prevented to maintain themselves while keeping in mind the right type of a man, sincere, honest, and a proposition whereby he will receive a bonus arrangement. REGARDLESS of that money NOT to be charged against future expense.

This arrangement is BETTER THAN SALARY; Better than Drawing Account.

Places a man square on his own feet without loss of self-respect and enables him to make his own living by his literary efforts. The inexperienced man will receive a solid school and training.

Hundreds of salesmen who have been here will make fortunes in 1925. With you qualify who can start at once.
